LARGE ATTENDANCE

At Athenaeum and Three Excellent Papers Read.

The October meeting of the Athenaeum Tuesday night brought out the largest attendance for many months. Only six of the 30 members were absent. The program was a delightful one and proved to be one of unusual interest.

Mr. John Stites had a most entertaining historical sketch on "Pocahontas," the dusky heroine of Jamestown, whose timely rescue of Capt. John Smith saved the life of the infant colony in 1607.

Mr. T. C. Underwood's humorous paper on "Livers and Lights" was in the versatile editor's best vein, abounding in happy hits.

Senator Frank Rives in a well written paper discussed "Government Ownership of Public Utilities."

All of the papers were discussed most entertainingly.

Dr. G. C. Abbott, Mr. Denny P. Smith and Mr. W. McL. Cowan are on the program for November.

STOLEN HORSE

Recovered at Kennedy Where Thief Had Abandoned Him.

A large bay horse was stolen from Mr. H. Carroll Thursday night and ridden by the thief to Kennedy, Ky., and turned into Esq. T. M. Barker's cornfield. The saddle was thrown into the corner of the fence. The horse was located in a few minutes after Mr. Carroll had notified Chief of Police Roper of his loss. Mr. Carroll went to Kennedy yesterday and recovered the stolen animal. The saddle did not belong to Mr. Carroll. It was a black wagon saddle.

STILL QUIET.

Police Are Enjoying Rest From September's Work.

Since our last issue the police have made but four arrests, one for drunkenness, one for throwing stones on the streets, one for littering and one for breach of the peace. The police are enjoying the season's rest but are keeping an open eye on everything and ready to go where they may be needed.

EPISCOPALIANS

Will Hold Services at First Presbyterian Church.

Owing to the condition of the audience room of Grace Episcopal church, incident to preparations for heating the room by steam and lighting by electricity instead of gas, the regular afternoon service will be held in the First Presbyterian church tomorrow.

Crops Injured.

Reports from Elizabethtown, Hawesville, Williamstown and other sections of the State say that the tobacco and corn crops are seriously injured by the recent rains. The condition in Christian is growing more serious every day and weather forecasts do not give much encouragement.

Haydon Trial.

The trial of Officer Amos R. Haydon, charged with fatally shooting John Coleman, col., June 1st, will be called Saturday of next week and a trial will probably be entered into. The defense expects to be able to show beyond a doubt that Haydon did not shoot Coleman.

Fourteen Indictments.

The grand jury returned fourteen indictments Wednesday and is still in session. It will continue until next week. Carry May Pendleton, the negro woman who was held over on a charge of robbery in snatching a watch from T. E. Gossett, was not indicted.

The Weather.

For Kentucky—Saturday, partly cloudy and cooler.

OCTOBER WEDDINGS.

Have Begun This Week With Quite a Rush Among Aspirants.

MORE TO FOLLOW SOON.

Mr. Dan W. Hanbery, Popular Mail Carrier, Takes a Bride.

The approaching marriage of Mr. John W. Winfree and Miss Lucy Edmunds is generally known and will be an event in society that has been predicted for some time. It is given out that the popular couple will be joined in wedlock at the home of the bride next Monday night. It is also given out that they will, but how soon we are not apprised, leave for some part of California to make their future home.

The bride-to-be is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Edmunds. She is one of the most popular young ladies in the city, pretty and vivacious and possessed of all the noble qualities that endear the Southern women to those who form their acquaintance. The prospective groom is a son of Judge and Mrs. W. P. Winfree. He is generally liked and has been traveling for a wholesale house for the past two years.

The marriage will be the culmination of a long attachment and their absence from the circle in which they have moved will cause general regret, but their host of friends will all wish for them a most happy future in their Western home.

Amos-Bronaugh.

Miss Martha Bronaugh, of Pembroke, and Mr. Samuel Amos, of Gracey, were married in Nashville Thursday afternoon. Shortly after the ceremony the young couple left for Gracey, where the groom is engaged in business. The approaching event was kept so quiet that few knew that the happy affair was to take place, but the marriage became known to some of the friends of the contracting parties here early Thursday evening, and several met Mr. Amos and his bride at the I. C. depot here, as they passed through, to extend congratulations and good wishes. The groom is a well-known young business man of Gracey. His bride is quite pretty and is very popular in Pembroke society.

Tweddell-Day.

Miss Essie Day, formerly of Crofton, was united in marriage Wednesday to Mr. Jesse Tweddell, of Sardis. The ceremony was performed at Sardis by Rev. J. A. McCord, formerly of this county, who is pastor of the Baptist church at Sardis.

Napier-Miller.

Miss Gardner Miller, daughter of Mr. M. G. Miller, of Louisville, formerly of Pembroke, and Mr. W. R. Napier, a well-known young business man, of Louisville, were married at the home of the bride Monday.

Hanbery-Fleming.

Mr. Dan W. Hanbery, the popular carrier on Rural Route No. 3, was married Thursday afternoon to Miss Mary Lavolia Fleming, of near Herndon. The bride is a daughter of Mr. J. T. Fleming, and the wedding took place at her home. Rev. J. A. Kirtley, of the Baptist church at Locust Grove, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hanbery came at once to the groom's home on Alumni avenue in this city. The groom is taking his vacation as carrier and is now busy receiving the congratulations of his many friends.

Never Too Old.

Judging by a number of recent marriages at old age it seems that people never get too far in life to marry. The latest in the matrimonial field occurred in Auburn, Ky., this week. The groom, "Uncle Billy" Chandler, is 87, and the bride, Mrs. Staples, is 75. Some of Hopkinsville's aged women without husbands will do well to remember that sooner or later the right man may show up.

HONOR FOR DAVIS.

Only Member of Orphans' Home Board Retained.

The principal matter of general interest attended to at the state meeting of the K. of P. grand lodge this week was the final establishment of the Pythian home for widows and orphans at Lexington. Two years ago the grand lodge decided upon this action and appointed nine trustees, who bought a $30,000 property near the city of Lexington, a big old mansion on a fine farm. Lexington was to furnish $4,000 of the money and this money was donated by Fayette county, which reserved the right to send widows and orphans to the home. This provision caused the grand lodge at its meeting here last year to refuse to ratify the purchase. This year the trouble was straightened out and the Lexington lodges put up the cash without any strings to it and the purchase was approved and the home will be opened as soon as possible.

The old board of commissioners was abolished and a new board of only five members was elected to have charge of the home. Mr. Lucian H. Davis, of this city, was the only member of the old board re-elected. This is a distinguished honor for Mr. Davis and a deserved one, for it was largely by his intelligent management that the trouble in the title was finally straightened out. He more than anyone else, realized the bargain in the property bought and opposed every move to surrender it, except as a last resort.

DEATH AT PEMBROKE.

Harvey Smith Passes Away After Long Suffering.

Mr. Harvey Smith, a well-known business man of Pembroke, is dead. He had been a great sufferer from locomotor ataxia for several years. He was 51 years old and a son of the late Thomas Smith. Deceased was a bachelor, and is survived by one brother, Owen J. Smith, and two sisters, Misses Helen and Nettie Smith. He was a member of the Baptist church and was also a Mason.

SENATOR McCREARY

Will Speak in This City on October 12.

Senator James B. McCreary will speak in this city next Friday, October 12, in the interest of his candidacy for renomination at the approaching Democratic primary election. His speech will be in the nature of a reply to that of Governor Beckham delivered last Monday. He will not doubt be heard by a large crowd.

Comes to Hopkinsville.

Miss Julia Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Street, of this place, has been selected as assistant chaperone for South Kentucky College at Hopkinsville, and left Monday for the place to assume her new duties. Miss Street is one of the most popular young ladies of this place, and the faculty could not have made a better selection for this place.—Cadiz Record.

Sixteen Bodies Recovered.

Sixteen bodies were recovered up to a late hour Thursday night from the West Fork mine of the Pocahontas Collieries Company at Pocahontas, Va., where an explosion occurred Wednesday afternoon. Thirty to 40 more men are entombed in the mine and it is believed that all of them have perished.

Died in Lone Star State.

Gustavus Long, a native of Christian county, died near El Paso, Tex., a few days ago. He was a son of the late Henry Long, who resided in the Antioch neighborhood, and moved to the Lone Star State twenty-seven years ago. Deceased was 51 years old and is survived by a widow and four brothers and four sisters.

Wall Paper Sale Still On.

The Forbes Manufacturing Co. announces that on account of bad weather their wall paper sale will be extended to Oct 11.

WHOLE FAMILY CHLOROFORMED.

One Member Dead and Others in Critical Condition.

WORK OF BURGLARS.

Family Formerly Lived Near Elkton, But Moved West.

Henry M. Collins, who moved from near Elkton to South Dakota, is in a critical condition, his wife is dead, and his two children are very ill, as the result of chloroform administered to them by burglars who entered their home, says a dispatch from Parker, S. D. The family were all asleep when the burglars entered the house and they were put under the influence of the drug. The burglars then proceeded to go through the house unmolested. They secured $200 in cash which Mr. Collins had drawn from the bank the afternoon before and some silverware and other valuables. Mr. Collins' brother, who slept in a room upstairs, was awakened by the robbers leaving the building and, going down stairs where the family slept, found Mrs. Collins dead and her husband and children unconscious. Bloodhounds and a posse of citizens are searching for the burglars.

Communion Day.

Tomorrow the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the First Presbyterian church.

FOR CONGRESS,

A. O. STANLEY,
OF HENDERSON.

Judge Frank Peake, of Shelbyville, has declared the county unit law to be unconstitutional.

More than 1,000 delegates attended the immigration convention in Paducah yesterday.

Another Russian general with an unpronounceable name, was injured by a bomb thrown at him Thursday. He had a very narrow escape.

John B. Moran was nominated by the Democrats for Governor of Massachusetts on a platform endorsing Bryan and Hearst.

Tomorrow is the last day upon which nominations for Congress could be made. The Republican convention on the 9th will be "twenty minutes late."

The Court of Appeals has reversed the life sentence of Bill Britton, one of the convicted murderers of Marshal James Cockrill, of Jackson, nearly five years ago. The admission of incompetent evidence was given as the ground of reversal.

Col. Biscoe Hindman, of Louisville, general agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of Kentucky and Tennessee, was dismissed from the service of that company because he is a candidate for trustee on the "selected fusion ticket," soon to be voted on.

The Government of the rebel forces in Cuba is proceeding satisfactorily. On Thursday violated Gen. Amador the insurgent commander in Havana province in the vicinity of Guines, and arranged for the disarmament of his forces. Cubans are beginning to discuss the future form of government of the island, and there is a strong sentiment in favor of annexation to the United States.

Gov. Beckham was most enthusiastically received at all his speaking appointments in the First district this week. At Cadiz, Eddyville and Paducah he had big crowds and if his reception at each place is to be taken as an indication, the First district will give him a big majority.

The James family seems to be holding its own pretty well this year. Three of them are running for Congress in Kentucky, a Democrat in the First, and Republicans in the Third and Eighth districts.

Attorney General Moody and Secretary Shaw are expected to retire from the Cabinet in sixty days. Ambassador Meyer, now a St. Petersburg, is expected to get one of the places.

The pension appropriation will show a decrease of $12,500,000 this year. The high water mark in pensions has been reached, and the decrease from now on will be rapid.

Hoke Smith was elected Governor of Georgia Tuesday. A very light vote was polled. There was no Republican ticket.

Five Lives Lost.

In a rear-end collision between a regular passenger and a heavy train of Pullman cars carrying the 15th United States cavalry from Fort Ethan Allen, five passengers were killed and a score or more injured on the Boston and Maine road, just outside of Troy, N. Y.

D. A. R. Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the D. A. R. will be held at Hotel Latham this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. All members are expected to attend.

CROPS INJURED.

Shocked Corn Said to Be Rotting—Tobacco Ruined in Barn and Field.

People in the city do not realize the serious crop conditions that the farmers are facing. If what we have heard be true, and we do not doubt it in the least.

From different sources we learn, as stated in our Tuesday's edition, that the rains and wind of last week seriously damaged tobacco that had not been cut and that standing corn was also injured.

Now comes the information that tobacco that had been cut and fired is in danger also. The air is so damp that tobacco hanging in the barns is liable to be ruined by the leaves rotting and falling off the stem. Tobacco cannot be "cured" the second time and the loss may thus be quite heavy on this account. For two months it has been nothing but rain, rain. This is certainly disheartening to the farmers who reaped rich harvests this year and may prove disastrous if dryer weather does not soon set in.

PRESBYTERY

Convenes in Louisville Next Tuesday Night.

The Louisville (Presbytery) meets in the Fourth Avenue church, Louisville, next Tuesday night. Rev. E. H. Bull and elder W. S. Davison, of the First Presbyterian church of this city, will attend. The meeting will be an important one, owing to the union of the Cumberland and Northern Presbyterian churches.

Will Move Here.

Mr. J. W. Daniel, of Owensboro, was in the city this week. He is connected with the Imperial Tobacco Company, now under the local management of Mr. Gordon Nelson, and will be manager of the stemming room. Mr. Daniel will bring his family here the 15th instant and occupy part of the residence of Mr. A. M. Wallis, Seventh and Liberty streets.

POSTOFFICE RULING.

Assistants Can Go and Come at Their Pleasure.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Acting Postmaster-General Hitchcock has ordered the exemption of over 1,700 assistant postmasters in first and second class postoffices from the requirement of recording the time of their arrival and departure from their offices. Mr. Hitchcock said that the Department recognizes assistant postmasters as executive managers of postoffices.

Hopkinsville being a second class office, Assistant Postmaster Gus Breathitt comes under the above ruling.

BIG PAY ROLL

I. C. R. R. Paid Out Over
$16,000 Last Month.

Some idea of the benefit the city is deriving from the operation of the I. C. railroad may be gained from the amount required last month to pay off the employees at this station.
Over $16,000 was paid to the different employees working on the road near the city and others working in the local office. All the employees buy their family supplies and clothing in Hopkinsville and their monthly salaries and wages gradually find their way into all the arteries of trade.

The work on the belt line has been a constant source of revenue to the city since work was first begun.
The road is practically completed at last, the stone ballast has been put in and engines are now running to 18th street.

Of course there is much for the company yet to do, as tracks have to be put in for the immense plants of the Forbes Manufacturing Company, the American Snuff Company, and the Climax Mills. Work on the buildings of the three companies is progressing rapidly, but there is plenty of work for a long time to come, and they, as well as the I. C., will give employment to a large force of mechanics and laborers for several months to come.

The Carnival.

The date for the opening of the carnival has been definitely fixed for Monday, October 15, and continue during the week. The National Fraternal Union, under whose auspices the carnival will be held, have arranged for a number of superior attractions and it will be one of the best ever held here. Four free attractions have been arranged for and everything points to a most successful week.

PADUCAH HIT.

Revenue Agent Brings Lot
of Suits for License Fees.

The Paducah News says: "Unwilling to accept the license record books in the county clerk's office as reliable, L. P. Tanner, agent for State Auditor Hager, has brought suit by wholesale against a large number of local firms of whom the State exacts license fees, whether license have been purchased and paid for or not.

The new statute imposes license charges on many lines of business, including money lenders, pool rooms, laundries, hardware stores that sell pistols, real estate agents and stores that sell proprietary beverages."

It is probable that there will be no trouble in Hopkinsville over the above. If there are any firms in the city who have not paid their license they had better get a move on themselves at once.

EVERY BILL A DRAWER

Kennedy Players Greeted by Crowded Houses
Every Night.

MATINEE TODAY AT 2:30.

Charles B. Hanford, Popular
Actor, Coming Friday, October 12.

The Kennedy Players are again making good with Hopkinsville thesgeters this week and in spite of the inclement weather the first of the week all the performances thus far have been to crowded houses.
This company has always been recognized as ranking with the very best of popular-priced shows which visit Hopkinsville and many think their performances better than a majority of those given by high-price companies. The play last night was "A Woman's Sacrifice" and the large audience was highly entertained throughout the performance. Numerous specialties were given and all were greatly enjoyed. In fact, the Kennedy Players have been making many new friends every night by the excellent presentation of popular plays. The matinee bill, "Tom Sawyer," at 2:30 this (Saturday) afternoon, will be the feature of the week.
Prices to the matinee will be 20 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

On the occasion of their presentation of this popular play it is safe to predict that the S. R. O. card will be displayed long before the rising of the curtain.

The company will close a week's engagement tonight, presenting that exiting play, "The Great Bank Robbery," when they will doubtless be greeted by another packed house.

The Grandeur of Old Rome.

The names of Booth and Barrett will always linger in the affections and admiration of the American people. They are still remembered as the greatest exponents of certain roles which rank among the drama's most noble characterizations. In addition to the interest which always attaches to one of Charles B. Han-ford's representations of legitimate drama, there is special interest in his work this season, owing to the fact that his production of "Julius Caesar" will be in effect an amplification of that made expressly for Booth and Barrett. Years ago when Mr. Hanford was a young and ambitious member of their supporting company, this original production was designed under the personal supervision of Booth and Barrett.
Mr. Hanford, who had made a signal success in his performance of Marc Anthony with them, purchased from the estate of Lawrence Barrett all the scenery, properties, costumes and music used in the representation.
The grandeur of old Rome is revived
by a series of colossal stage pictures, all historically correct, and the cast which will be seen in the Hanford production of "Julius Caesar" at Holland's opera house on Friday, October 12, will reflect the judgment and conscientious care which this actor has always displayed in selecting his company.

JOHN SCHMIDT, JR.

The Fowls of France.

M. EDWARD BROWN, who has spent six weeks in the United States recently, some years ago wrote up the French varieties of poultry as well as the methods proper to the poultry raisers of France, under the name of Stephen Reule, in one of our agricultural papers, which we reprint below. This will answer several inquiries we have received regarding the fowls of France and the methods of handling the same. Mr. Brown, in writing of his visit to the Paris show, remarks:

"The poultry section of the Paris show is divided into two classes, for live and dead. Both have special attractions of their own, and together give a completeness to the Mardi Gras show which we do not find elsewhere in Europe. The fancy element does not enter into the French poultry nearly so much as in Britain, and hence we do not see that perfection of type or that uniformity of character to be noticed at our leading exhibitions. At the same time, however, there is no doubt that breeders realize the importance of maintaining purity of strain. Further, it can be seen in this show what are the economic qualities of any breed. For instance, if anyone unacquainted with the subject were to look at the LaMans fowl, he would never for one moment dream that these birds could be bred to such perfection by fattening, as is the case, and the same is seen in other varieties. Moreover, it is difficult to judge of the delicacy of the flesh and skin when looking at a fowl externally, and of course the English notion that only white-legged fowls can be good for table purposes is at once dissipated by the fact that the finest of French table poultry are dark legged. We believe that much of the quality seen in French table poultry is due to the systems of fattening adopted there at the same time, however, there must be the tendency or disposition to lay on flesh, as also the power to produce the finest and most delicate qualities.

"The live poultry are placed around the gallery overlooking the main hall of the Palais d'Industrie. The authorities make no provision for feeding the fowls; hence, the great bulk of exhibitors are what may be termed dealers, people who can keep attendants at the show looking after the fowls. This is a great drawback, and as long as it is the rule we fear that the business will remain entirely in the hands of the people like this, a very regrettable circumstance, as the infusion of amateurs would enhance the interest. Further, no charge is made for entry fees, and so large numbers of birds are sent for sale without expectation of securing a prize. The pens are decorated or otherwise by the cards of their owners, and visitors are constantly reminded that these birds are for sale. Certainly we have seen a better lot of this variety than was shown at Paris this week. We do not know why it is, but there is a falling off both in the live and dead classes.

"Houdans are enormous classes, and this breed, which is primarily kept for egg production, is also useful for third or fourth rate table purposes, and in that way it supplies a considerable demand. There was a great want of evenness in the type of these birds and they cannot compare with what were exhibited eight or ten years ago. The introduction of Jerve Coueur blood has had its effect in darkening the plumage. Two or three of the exhibits, both in cocks and hens, were good, but we should like to see the Houdan maintain more of its old light-mottled appearance, and not have so heavy a body.

"The LaFleche fowls are undoubtedly the features of the show, and we do not remember to have seen a finer lot. Most of the birds are splendid in body, broad in breast, with all those qualities which go to make a first-class table fowl. Size has undoubtedly been taken into consideration by the judges, and this is wise, because in table fowls diminutive size weighs as a penalty about a rapid deterioration in the variety. I note that there are perhaps than before, a tendency to white in the face and this is most probably the result of breeding for the white ear-lobe, for the two generally run together.

"The DuMans fowls never make great numbers. The fact is that they have never been bred with the same care for external qualities as have those breeds already mentioned. They have many of the points found in the LaFleche, but carry a rose comb. There were a number of fairly good birds, the winning lot of hens being decidedly the best, and we regret to note that in the cocks there is rather a tendency to smallness of size, to encourage which would be a great mistake.

"The LaBresse breed is only represented by one variety, the blacks, and we were sorry that those were rather light in plumage. The show of LaBresse fowls is, however, in spite of this omission very good, and we hope this variety will long maintain its position in eastern France.

"The Barbezies are a large variety of the Mediterranean type, though somewhat heavier in bone. There was a special lack of uniformity in this class, and whilst the Barbezies are chiefly distinguished as an egg-producing fowl, at the same time we like to see the good type sustained.

"The Courtepattee is a variety bred in the LaSarre district of Normandy and ought to have very short legs, giving it a squat appearance. There seems to be a disposition to make the Courtepattee long on the leg, and this would be a great mistake. They are highly appreciated for table purposes, and one of the famous French dishes is formed from these fowls. The winning cock was of the right character, but many others in the class were a long way behind him in this respect."

Fowls During Moulting.

LOOSE Feathers will now soon be plentiful in the poultry yards, for many of the older birds will commence to moult. Those fowls that roost in cool open sheds or in trees will not usually go into moult as soon as those that roost in warm houses. But by September the large majority will be shedding their plumage. A quick and early moult is generally desirable. The fowls then get through the process before the cold weather arrives and thus avoid the ill effects that often result when they moult late. Stock birds will be in better condition to lay early in the winter and to produce stronger chickens and show birds will be well over their trouble and in the best of plumage when required for the fall exhibitions.

Poultry that have their liberty and are generally well fed, get through their period without difficulty. Those, however, that are kept in confinement are all the better for a little extra attention. The non-sitting reeders feather more slowly than others perhaps because they lay a greater number of eggs, the production of which causes more exhaustion of the system. The food at this time should not be of too heating a description; it should comprise plenty of green vegetables, among these lettuce that is going to seed is as good as any. A little of the sulphate of iron tonic in the water now and then is useful. Epsom salts, too, (not Rochelle salts), are good; twice a week as much as will make the drinking water taste slightly. There must be ready access to shelter in order that the fowls may not be exposed to heavy rain. A thorough soaking when they are partly denuded of their plumage may result in roup or other serious illness. Hens that get through the moult early and quickly will almost invariably prove good winter layers.

It is in every way better to separate cocks from hens during the moult. They are usually fierce and spiteful to the hens when changing their feathers, and sometimes will treat them cruelly. The tail and back feathers of the cock birds take a long time to grow, so the sooner they begin to drop the better. Small and warm quarters promote the moult. It is surprising how quickly the feathers will grow under these conditions. Old hens that are to be got rid of and which are intended for the table, should be disposed of just as they begin to shed their feathers. It is not always easy to tell from the appearance of the hen as she runs about whether she has begun to moult or not, but when she begins to drop the better she will stop laying and will hardly eat anything for a few days and yet not shed any feathers still she suddenly appears almost bare. They will rapidly become thin after they have lost their appetites. If a visit is paid to the fowl house soon after the birds have gone to moult, those that are still laying will be found to have full crops, while those that have stopped will have but little food in them. No great mistake, therefore, can be made if those hens that are on the wicket at that time are kept.

The house must be kept clean, or the same feathers will cover in the corners and harbor a lot of insect vermin. If these insects are in large numbers the birds will become so weak that the moult will be greatly prolonged. Any fowl that is intended for exhibition must be kept out of the sun, and the moult must be kept in the shade. A. V. Mersch, in American Poultry Journal.

Mating B. P. Rocks.

AGAIN comes the question from readers of the American Poultry Advocate, and they want to know my opinion in regard to the mating of Barred Plymouth Rocks.

The nature of Barred Plymouth Rocks is a question of very great importance. How to mate our pens for best results, or in what manner can we produce the best and largest and purest per cent. of standard birds is the question that thousands of breeders would like to have settled at once. After years of experimenting along this line, practicing the double and single mating of Barred Plymouth Rocks, I am a strong advocate of the single or standard mating. To be plain, I do not believe there is anything reliable or certain in breeding Barred Plymouth Rocks unless the line bred and mate standard colored birds. The time is at hand when the double or extreme mating should be abandoned by all breeders. The American Poultry Association should condemn a method of mating that requires other than standard colored birds in all varieties of poultry. Double mating will produce a few show birds that are in a manner worthless except to the breeder that produced them. Fowls that are fit only for the show room and have no reproductive qualities can be relied upon, are not, in my estimation, very valuable unless for advertising purposes. What we need is a strain of Barred Plymouth Rocks that mated according to the standard, will produce an even, uniform lot of colored males and females. The double mating is simply a plan devised to produce a few, nice show birds and the many culls at home are not mentioned. They range from the color of the crow to pure white.

I have been in the yards of many breeders in the past year and the ones that breed standard birds in color have the most uniform lot and equally as high scoring birds as can be found in the yards of those who double mate. In order to get a strain or blood established, we must not only breed in line, but we must select and breed the choicest standard birds each year. The plan of extreme mating is not in line to accomplish any definite results except a few good show birds each season. I fail to see where any advancement can be made in this manner of mating. It is my aim to make some improvement each year along the line of standard mating. I have been working for closer, deeper and better barred birds, with two stripes or bars running straight across the feathers and as uniform as possible. By following this line of breeding we can certainly produce ones that are better than our friends who follow the double mating. My advice to all breeders of the Barred Plymouth Rocks is to mate standard colored birds in both sexes, with even, distinct barring. Select birds with clean yellow legs and strong in bone and muscle. Do not use birds for breeders will brassy, smoky or dingy plumage, but clean cut in every way. They should have broad, deep bodies, breast broad and full and slightly on the blocky order rather than flitty in appearance. Beautiful surface color of a standard shade is first desired, under color is secondary in importance. I have made a rule never to sacrifice any other good points for the sake of deep under color. However, I aim to have the barring to show as strong as possible down to the skin. The real beauty of a fowl is its symmetry and surface color.

Our graduates are in such great demand by business and industry that they are being recruited by many of the leading business men of this day and age. If you are forced to advance the ball twice as far as formerly in the same number of downs. It readily may be seen that mass play will not do this, at least if the two teams are of anything like equal strength, and with weight not counting, the only resort is open play, in which science and skill will be a factor. New trick plays will be tried with countless new formations.
In addition, the rule regarding hurdling was made more blinding. No foot-first hurdling will be allowed, and as few hurdlers can go over the line in any other position without losing their feet a large per cent. of the hurdling will be eliminated. And then again a new ruling regarding tackling was made. When the runner touches the ground with any portion of his body other than his hands or feet he is down and the ball is out of play.
This rule is aimed at dragging and crawling should eliminate "pulling out" tactics. Tackling high is again allowable and will aid both the runner and the defense men, for the former will not be compelled to guard their legs so closely and may thus reach greater speed, while the latter, evading the arm of the runner, are surer of a clear tackle.
One rule was adopted affecting the positions of the linemen. Only the center and the guards may interlock their legs, and by this provision also the committee worked against the mass formation, for the defense is unable to see more clearly what is taking place behind the offense line.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

Coach W. T. Reid, who will be at the head of Harvard football this year, is probably the highest salaried football coach in the country. Reid last year received $3,500 from the Harvard Athletic Association for his two months' coaching, and then it was admitted he received $1,500 from other sources, so that his salary was $5,000 a year, almost as much as President Eliot himself received. The only other coach who ever received this amount was Foster Sanford, the old Yale player, when he was coach at Columbia. But Columbia's authorities refused to sanction this enormous salary after a year or two and Sanford had to go. Now, with the exception of Reid, the highest salary usually paid to a football coach is $3,500. This is the amount that Coach Williams, of Minnesota and Coach Slagg, of Chicago, are thought to receive. But the latter men earn their salary more certainly than does Reid, for they coach other teams besides football, their whole time virtually being given to coaching from one year's end to the other.

The University of Michigan will get one of the best schoolboy athletes in the east this fall in N. B. Yost, a brother of the famous football coach, "Hurricane" Yost. The younger Yost finished his course at Mercersburg academy and selected the Ann Arbor college as his training school for the next four years. Yost had few equals among the eastern schoolboys as a shot-putter and hammer-thrower. He was also a football player with few equals. His position was on the line, though he frequently played in the back field at fullback. In the big indoor meets in Chicago on last Washington's birthday, Yost first blossomed out as a weight-thrower. He won the shot-put with a distance of over 43 feet. He put the weight over this distance frequently throughout the season, and has taken prizes in all the big meets. Yost is six feet in height and weighs about 180 pounds. For all that he is a big man he is active and a fast runner. He is one of the best ground gainers and hurdlers in the school ranks.

Within a few weeks the heroes of the baseball world will have to give way to a new band of warriors—that of the college football players. September always marks the exit of the one and the entry of the other. One does not need to indulge in prophecy to declare with truth that no football season in intercollegiate history was over the center of so much interest as will be that of 1906. The principal reason for this assertion is the new football code prepared by the football rules committee, composed of members of the athletic boards of the leading eastern and western colleges, which has just been completed, and which is certain to almost revolutionize the game. There are some critics who declare that the new code will ruin the sport, but the season itself must prove or disprove this.

The aim of the committee has been to do away with dangerous play, and it has ruled so that mass play is a thing of the past. The first and hardest blow dealt to the mass formation was the adoption of the ten-yard rule. As it now stands, the offense will be compelled to gain ten yards in three downs, or, in other words, to advance the ball twice as far as formerly in the same number of downs. It readily may be seen that mass play will not do this, at least if the two teams are of anything like equal strength, and with weight not counting, the only resort is open play, in which science and skill will be a factor. New trick plays will be tried with countless new formations.

In addition, the rule regarding hurdling was made more blinding. No foot-first hurdling will be allowed, and as few hurdlers can go over the line in any other position without losing their feet a large per cent. of the hurdling will be eliminated. And then again a new ruling regarding tackling was made. When the runner touches the ground with any portion of his body other than his hands or feet he is down and the ball is out of play.
This rule is aimed at dragging and crawling should eliminate "pulling out" tactics. Tackling high is again allowable and will aid both the runner and the defense men, for the former will not be compelled to guard their legs so closely and may thus reach greater speed, while the latter, evading the arm of the runner, are surer of a clear tackle.
One rule was adopted affecting the positions of the linemen. Only the center and the guards may interlock their legs, and by this provision also the committee worked against the mass formation, for the defense is unable to see more clearly what is taking place behind the offense line.

The Old Reliable Jewelry House

of Hopkinsville is, after all, the best place to get anything in the jewelry line. There's a record behind us, a record of over thirty years; a clean record of satisfied customers, a record of honest dealing, for honest quality, honest prices. It's a record any Jeweler might feel proud of. And when we sell an article we have in mind that we have a record to maintain, and no slipshod methods, no careless workmanship, no lack of quality, is ever allowed to mar the record of the past. But to improve, if possible, this record, is ever our aim, and goods are sold for as low a price as it is possible to sell reliable goods.

It will pay you in the end to deal with the Old Reliable Jeweler.
